The case was called promptly at 8 o'clock, but a jury was not secured until in the afternoon, a special venire of eighty men being almost exhausted before the jury was selected.

Several of the eye-witnesses to the tragedy were put on the stand. Their testimony was about the same as that given at the examining trial, a report of which appeared in The Post at the time, with the exception of that of Alonzo Allee, Jr. He did not appear at the examining trial. His testimony, however, was practically in accord with the other witnesses. A night session of the court was held last

Insects Found in Bloodweed Arc Not Dreaded Cotton Pest. New Ulm, Texas, February 22.—From

wille, Texas, firm: Messra, Schauerhammer & Roench, Bellville, Texas.
Agricultural Department, Washington, February 7.—Gentleman: I have your letter of January 30 with accompanying specimens. The insects which you send are not the Mexican boil weevil, but a common Texas weevil, known as lixus laesicollis lee. Its habits are unknown, but it is fairly certain that it does not feed upon any cultivated or useful plants. It lives like other species of its kind, in the species of weeds, and, perhaps, the plant which you designated as "bloodweed," or wild hemp may be one of its host places.
The insect developes from whitish larvae, or grubs, which feeds within the stems.
Possibly, if you search you may be able to find traces of the larvae or even the heetles in the stems of the plants; if so, I would be very glad to obtain specimens and sufficient of the plant to ascertain its botanical name. Yours very truly,

I of Howard, Enloyungerist.
